

Still waiting for your $1200 Economic Impact Payment from the IRS?

Receive an Economic Impact Payment that didn't include the $500 payment for a dependent child?

Individuals with the following qualifications are eligible for a $1200 Economic Impact Payment:

- Possess a Social Security number
- Cannot be claimed as a dependent on anyone else's tax return
- Adjusted gross income of less than $75,000/yr for singles, $112,500/yr for heads of household, and $150,000/yr for joint filers (those above this income may still receive stimulus checks, but not the full $1200)

For every dependent child under 17 who has an SSN or Adoption Taxpayer Identification Number, you are entitled to an additional $500 Economic Impact Payment.

Many Social Security, SSI, Department of Veterans Affairs and Railroad Retirement Board beneficiaries have not yet received their $500 per child payments.

- For those federal beneficiaries who have already used the Non-Filers tool to provide information on children, no further action is needed. The IRS will automatically make a payment in October.
- Federal beneficiaries who have not received a payment for a dependent child and have not used the Non-Filers tool to provide information on their child should register online by November 21st using the Non-Filers tool available at IRS.gov.

Don't receive federal benefits? Not required to file a tax return?

Use the Non-Filers' tool available at IRS.gov by November 21st to receive your payment this year.

Anyone who misses the deadline this year will need to wait until next year to claim the Economic Impact Payment as a credit on their 2020 federal income tax return.

For assistance with the Economic Impact Payment, contact MidPenn Legal Services at 800-326-9177